EMPLOYEE HR HANDBOOK

& OPERATIONS NOTEBOOK

ANONYMIZED WORKING COPY

A practical summary of employment, attendance, leave, conduct, confidentiality and exit procedures.

PURPOSE

This notebook organizes the supplied policy material into a readable employee handbook and a practical HR operations checklist. Organization names, contact details, addresses, website details and other organization-specific identifiers have been removed.

Important: This is an anonymized summary of supplied material, not a legal opinion or an approved policy. The source contains strict salary, stipend, deduction, notice and certificate clauses, including terms that may conflict with each other. HR/legal review is needed before this document is adopted or relied upon.

01 / CORE TERMS

Employment and internship terms

Employment and probation

- The probation period is stated as six months. Regular performance reviews are intended to assess performance and suitability.
- Employees are expected to devote their working hours to assigned duties and perform their responsibilities faithfully and efficiently.
- Role descriptions and duties may change in response to business needs. The source also allows assignment to different offices or departments.
- The source expects employees to arrange their own travel to and from the workplace. It mentions travel and lodging allowance for certain inter-office or departmental postings, but does not provide rates or approval steps.
- Equal employment opportunity is stated as a principle. Concerns about discrimination or harassment should be raised promptly with management or the appropriate HR channel.
- Confidentiality obligations continue during employment and after employment ends.

Internship conditions

- Interns are expected to comply with workplace policies. The source says an internship may be discontinued for unsatisfactory performance or policy non-compliance.
- The source states that an internship certificate is issued only upon successful completion.
- It also states that interns must be notified in writing about time or other limitations that apply to them.
- The source links some non-compliance or early-exit situations to loss of stipend or certificate. These consequences require legal/HR review before being applied.
- Leave taken during probation or internship may extend the period by the number of leave days, according to the source.

HR setup checklist: Provide the role description, probation/internship duration, performance-review expectations, working hours, leave request method, confidentiality expectations and any written limitations. Keep organization-specific details out of this anonymized template.

Policy gaps to fill before adopting

- The supplied material does not give a performance-review schedule, scoring framework, probation confirmation form or appeal process.
- It does not identify a designated HR role, approval turnaround time or a complete employee onboarding document checklist.

02 / WORKING ARRANGEMENTS

Attendance, leave and time off

Office schedule and punctuality

Item	Rule stated in source
Working hours	10:00 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.
Lunch	2:00 p.m. to 2:45 p.m.
Weekly/monthly off	Every second and fourth Saturday of the month is off.
Late arrival / early departure	An explanation is required for each late arrival or early departure, using the time-off request format.
Monthly time-off limit	A total of 20 minutes is stated as the permitted monthly limit for late arrival/early departure. Each further 10 minutes is stated to count as a half-day.

Leave rules

- During probation/internship: The source says no leave is granted. Leave taken may extend the probation/internship period by the number of days taken.
- After probation: One leave day per month is stated, with public holidays in addition to that entitlement.
- Planned leave: Request by email at least one week in advance; planned events such as weddings or family functions should be requested 7-10 days ahead. The source says only advance email requests are considered approved.
- Emergency: Inform the office as early as possible. For sudden illness, notify the office on the same day. A medical note may be required for sick leave exceeding two days; repeated short-notice illness may require medical certification.
- Weekend/holiday adjacency: The source says leave immediately before or after a weekend/public holiday may cause the whole period, including the weekend/holiday, to be counted as leave if not pre-approved.
- Unapproved absence: The source specifies salary deductions and potential disciplinary action for leave without permission/intimation, repeated unauthorized leave, or prolonged/repeated absenteeism. The exact deduction clauses should be checked by HR/legal before use.

Important source caveat: The supplied material contains multiple severe deduction/withholding statements for unapproved leave and employment exit. This summary does not validate those terms. Confirm the applicable rules and lawful payroll treatment before taking action.

03 / WORK RULES

Remote work and workplace conduct

Work from home

- Remote work is not described as a standard entitlement; exceptions are handled case by case.
- Eligibility depends on the role and responsibilities. Genuine personal or health-related circumstances may be considered.
- The reporting manager and HR decide based on operational requirements.
- Every approval must be documented by email and approved in advance by the reporting manager/HR.

Expected workplace behaviour

- Treat colleagues, customers and stakeholders with courtesy and professionalism. Harassment, discrimination, bullying, threats and abusive language are prohibited in the source policy.
- Demonstrate reliability, accountability and integrity; meet deadlines, attend meetings on time and follow through on commitments.
- Cooperate with teammates, share knowledge appropriately and resolve disagreements constructively.
- Use professional language in work communications. Avoid gossip, disruptive arguments and unproductive discussions.
- Raise concerns about policy, benefits or working arrangements privately and professionally through HR or the reporting channel.
- Follow company procedures and applicable legal requirements. Report suspected unethical behaviour or policy violations through the proper channel.

Personal device and phone use

- Frequent personal phone use during work is discouraged. Phones should be silenced/vibrated and kept face down or stored away during working time.
- Do not use a phone camera or microphone to record confidential information.
- Personal use is permitted during breaks/lunch, for brief essential messages, brief important personal calls away from colleagues' workspaces, and business calls.
- The source prohibits games during working hours and restricts downloading/uploading material through the corporate internet connection. Follow the organization's authorized IT/security rules for any exception.
- The source states that excessive or inappropriate phone use may lead to restrictions or disciplinary action if it harms productivity, workflow, confidentiality or safety.

Fair handling: Apply conduct expectations consistently and document relevant decisions. Concerns about individual circumstances should be handled through the appropriate confidential HR process, not informal comparison with other employees.

04 / PROTECT PEOPLE AND INFORMATION

Confidentiality, security and serious misconduct

Confidential information

- Treat business, technical, product, service, research, development, design, engineering, marketing, sales and other non-public information as confidential when it is covered by the applicable policy or agreement.
- Use confidential information only for authorized work purposes. Do not use it for personal gain or disclose it outside the authorized group.
- Share information only with authorized colleagues who have a legitimate need to know.
- Take reasonable measures to protect records and information from accidental access, misuse, copying or disclosure.
- Report suspected misuse, loss or unauthorized disclosure promptly through the appropriate management/HR/security channel.
- Do not copy, export, reverse engineer, sell, or reuse proprietary information or internal materials without authorization.

Examples of serious offences listed in the source

- Undisclosed competing side, part-time, freelance or similar work that breaches applicable employment obligations.
- Falsifying hours worked or omitting information requested on official records.
- Unauthorized use, removal, theft or intentional damage to organizational, employee, contractor or customer property.
- Threatened or actual physical violence, abusive language, unauthorized weapons, or intoxicants on premises or during work business.
- Gambling or seriously disorderly conduct on premises or while conducting business.
- Absence for two consecutive scheduled work days without notification, unless sufficient reason is supported as described in the source.
- Copying company data to removable media, email, cloud drives, printouts or other unauthorized channels.
- Disclosing internal project or official information to outsiders or competitors.

Response principle: The source allows corrective or disciplinary action, up to termination, depending on the circumstances. Investigations should be documented and handled through authorized channels. The supplied text contains broad, strict consequences; confirm the appropriate process and legal requirements before applying them.

05 / EMPLOYMENT CHANGES

Resignation, termination and holiday administration

Resignation and handover

- The source specifies two months' prior notice for resignation.
- Before release, employees are expected to complete assignments and obtain approval/release from their immediate manager or project lead.
- Early release is described as subject to project-manager approval and payment in lieu of the remaining notice duration.
- The source says leave is not granted during the notice period and leave taken may extend the notice period.
- Before closing an employee record, confirm the resignation date, applicable notice rule, handover status, access/property return, final settlement and certificate eligibility through the approved HR process.

Termination and settlement clauses in the source

- The supplied text describes immediate termination for certain policy violations, prolonged/repeated absence, non-punctuality or major offences.
- It also contains clauses about withholding salary or stipend, applying specific deductions, denying experience/relieving certificates, and deductions tied to failure to complete notice or assignments.
- The resignation section and general policy contain salary/notice statements that may be inconsistent or unclear. Do not resolve these conflicts by assumption; confirm the authoritative terms with qualified HR/legal review before payroll action or communication.

Holidays calendar

The supplied file includes a holiday calendar with dates from 2025 and 2026 and some entries that may be stale or inconsistent. This notebook intentionally does not reproduce that date list. Maintain and circulate a current, approved holiday calendar separately, including any substitute working Saturdays.

Payroll and benefits information not supplied

- No regular payroll date, salary structure, bank-change procedure, reimbursement workflow, insurance details or general employee-benefits schedule was provided.
- No stipend or salary calculation method is provided beyond the source's employment-exit and absence-related statements. HR/payroll should use approved source systems and confirm disputed terms directly.

Recommended control: Before final settlement, use a written checklist and make sure any deductions, notice adjustments and certificate decisions have an identified policy basis, documented approval and compliance review.

06 / PRACTICAL WORKFLOW

HR operations runbook

A. Onboarding and start-of-engagement

Step	Action based on the supplied policies
1. Confirm terms	Record the engagement type, start date, six-month probation where applicable, internship duration, reporting manager and role description.
2. Explain work rules	Share office hours, lunch timing, Saturday-off pattern, punctuality/time-off rules, leave request method and work-from-home approval requirements.
3. Set expectations	Explain confidentiality, device use, respectful conduct, meeting behaviour, data handling and reporting channels.
4. Document limits	For interns, document in writing any time or other limitations that apply, as stated in the source.
5. Plan reviews	Schedule regular probation/performance check-ins. The source calls for regular reviews but does not specify their frequency or format.

B. Leave, attendance and work-from-home requests

- Receive planned leave by email in advance and check the requested dates, duration, reason and required notice.
- For emergencies or sudden illness, record when the employee notified the office and whether supporting medical evidence is required under the source policy.
- For late arrival or early departure, collect an explanation using the time-off request fields in the form section.
- Approve or decline planned leave and WFH requests through the authorized manager/HR path; preserve the decision in writing.
- Do not apply payroll deductions solely from an automated interpretation of the source. Escalate any disputed, severe or unclear deduction clause for HR/legal review.

C. Employee record changes

- The source does not define a complete record-change workflow. As a practical control, accept changes through an authorized HR channel, document the requested change and approval, and limit access to confidential information.
- Keep formal decisions and policy notices in writing, since the source states that actions/decisions may be communicated by email or written notice.
- Do not place personal identifiers or sensitive employee details in this reusable anonymized template.

07 / EXIT, SUPPORT AND TEMPLATES

HR operations runbook and reusable forms
