EMPLOYEE-FACING POLICIES

1 Leave Policies

Annual leave and sick leave are managed according to eligibility, available balances, and the company approval process. Employees should submit planned leave in advance and report sickness or unexpected absence promptly. Any required medical evidence and holiday rules follow company policy and applicable law.

2 Work Arrangements

The company policy defines whether a role is on-site, hybrid, or remote, along with normal working hours and any core availability periods. Employees should communicate schedule changes, attend required meetings, protect company information, and use approved equipment and systems.

3 Compensation & Benefits

Payroll information should explain pay dates, payslips, taxes, deductions, and how to report discrepancies. Benefits, insurance, reimbursements, and other entitlements depend on eligibility and the applicable plan documents. Employees should keep payroll and bank details accurate and secure.

4 Conduct & Attendance

Employees are expected to act respectfully, maintain confidentiality, follow information-security rules, disclose relevant conflicts of interest, and comply with workplace standards. Attendance expectations include punctuality, accurate time reporting where required, and timely notice of lateness or absence.

STANDARD HR WORKFLOWS

5 Onboarding

Confirm the offer and joining details, collect and verify required documents, set up payroll records and benefits where applicable, arrange equipment and system access, and complete orientation. The manager should clarify responsibilities, team contacts, initial goals, and any required training.

6 Employee Support

Record each request, verify the relevant details, and route it to the authorized HR, manager, or payroll contact. For leave, check the balance and approval status. For pay issues, compare the payslip with approved records and escalate discrepancies through a secure channel.

7 Employee Records

Process changes to personal details, contact information, bank accounts, job title, manager, compensation, or leave records only after appropriate verification and authorization. Update the approved HR system, retain a clear audit trail, limit access to those who need it, and follow retention rules.

8 Offboarding

Follow the resignation or separation process and confirm notice-period and final-day arrangements. Coordinate knowledge transfer, return of company assets, timely revocation of system access, final payroll and benefits steps, exit feedback if appropriate, and secure retention of required records.
